Subject: Community Choice Energy Governance--Tuesday's Council meeting

Good Day Mayor and Councilmembers!

I have read/reviewed the Governance Analysis Report and agree with its conclusion that the best Governance would be achieved via a Joint Powers Authority (JPA) between Carlsbad, Encinitas, and Del Mar.

Although it might be "easier" to follow the "Big Dog" of the City of San Diego, it is my understanding from reading the Report that any perceived advantage of a larger economy of scale becomes negligible after a certain size. In short, not much monetary savings between following the City of San Diego and the proposed three City JPA.

In my opinion a North County Coastal JPA would provide LOCAL governance that would create more LOCAL jobs and business opportunities, AND more tax revenue. It is my understanding that Carlsbad and Encinitas have successfully worked together for years via the Encina Wastewater Authority JPA.

I also understand from the Report that the three City JPA may be the most expedient and thus move us faster towards the goals of our Climate Action Plans.

Thank you for working for the best interests of Carlsbad!

All the best,

Don Christiansen

Subject: SanDiego350 Comment Letter on North County CCE Governance Study

Dear Honorable Elected Official,

Thank you for your work on moving toward adopting a Community Choice Energy program.

At SanDiego350 and as a member of the San Diego Community Choice Alliance we believe that a CCE program is the best path forward to achieve 100% renewable energy goals, provide local control of developing renewable energy resources, creating programs to address environmental justice issues and reinvest rate payer dollars back into the community for local economic development.

Please find attached a letter that provides input on the North County governance study for a CCE program. As the letter outlines we believe that the best path forward is for North County jurisdictions to join a regional CCE program with the City of San Diego and other regional partners.

Please let me know if you have any questions or if we can provide any additional input into the process or governance study.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Ryan
